

From: Alisa Clyne
To: Public Hearing;
CC:
Subject: Why a bank?
Date: Saturday, April 08, 2006 3:20:13 AM
Attachments:

Why does a supplier of mass goods need to be the bank also? When grocery store has a separate entity bank inside it for its customers, it is convenient and that ground is covered. But when we mix up goods and bank in the same entity, then there is no autonomy. All things start to become a monopoly - Supplier of; cds, dvds, clothes, housewares, toiletry supply, kids' toy and gift section, camping, lawn care, sewing, light bulbs, dog food, office supplies, FOOD like an entire grocery center now. Next a bank. Do we really want a company with a product line from the dirt to the heavens and bank, too.

It's too much.

Alisa Clyne
Mother of three
Rare Walmart shopper